

Mr Carnel D Greasham

June 19, 1983 - August 1, 2017

On August 1, 2017, Carnel Dawon Greasham received a call, a sort of an offer you can't refuse, for an appointment from which he will not be returning. On that call he was notified that his job here was done and he was reminded that it was a job well done but now is the time for the pain and suffering to end and time to come home to be with his heavenly father. Carnel's love was so pure and unselfish. He had a nonjudgmental spirit and no one had to question their position of where they stood with him. It was always made clear. He remained loyal and unchanged. He stayed real, raw, and uncut while also being inspiring and encouraging. Carnel was pure comedy. He was fun-loving, the life of the party, and an absolute joy to be around as there was never a dull moment. He was effortlessly amazing and perfect in his own way. Carnel loved his son more than life itself and was an exemplary father. He treated his nieces like his own, and he was the best friend that his sister needed. Some would joke and say he was a white boy at heart. Adele's song, "Hello, it's me", was his favorite song. Carnel was also a hard-working family man. He took pride in the love that he had for his family and always worked hard to provide for his family and others. He was always striving for excellence. He attended school in Atlanta at the at the age of 21 to become an electrician. He then moved on to thrive, excel, and succeed with Bimbo, where he worked for 12 years. He was a very dedicated young man that we are all extremely proud of. We can go on and on about his greatness but as we come to an end, I want each and everyone of us to reflect on the good times and through our sadness let us also remain happy and comforted in our spirits knowing that Carnel Greasham has gained his wings and is in a better place, Carnel Dawon Greasham is survived by his mother, Sandra Greasham; his brother, Denoris Greasham; his sister, ShaVonne Greasham; his son, Carnel Greasham, Jr., his niece, Shalia Greasham; and a multitude of other cousins, uncles, aunts, and friends, who became family. Carnel Greasham is preceded in death by his brother, Darvis Greasham, and his father, Curtis Blake.

“ I Timeka Alexander send my condolences on behalf of me and my family. Ms Sandra Gresham God has His hands on you! He is the Only One to feel comfort from, in your time of need! You are truly built tough and to last! God is constantly testing with challenges, trials, and tribulations! He wants us to rely solely upon Him, His Grace, Love, and Will! He knows just what He wants from us! I know that I don't have the right words and for lack of, I almost didn't comment, but that would not ease me. I love you and your family, if I was to say, I can relate to your feelings, I would be telling a lie. I just want you to know that you and your family isn't alone! God has all of our answers. I love you, all!
