“ Shana and Cody. I also worked with your mama at Concentrix. She had a laugh that was infectious. I can still hear her laugh, and I would always laugh with her. She always called me Shelly, and she would turn to me and say "now Shelly what in the world are you laughing at"? I said you, and she would ask why, and I would answer with because I love your laugh. She would smile really big. Your mama was a wonderful woman, and if she knew I was having a bad day, she would find away to get smiling and laughing. But she could always give good advice if I was struggling through a bad time. She would say Shelly what's wrong, talk to me girl. That lady could always offer words of encouragement, I always felt at comfort listen to her. I miss her so much already. She was a good friend, and I feel blessed for God bringing her into my life. We shared lots of laughs, and I don't think there was ever a time where I never seen her smile. She always had a smile on her face, and very happy. I know she loved you both dearly, and my sincere condolences to you both and your family. You can see by the posts, your mama was a special lady, and touched a lot lives, she cam in contact with. She will be dearly missed for sure. Mitzi fly high with the angels, it's not good bye. I will see you later. Forever in ours hearts, RIP ladybug!!! Love Shelly!! Blowing kisses to heaven!!

“ Mitzi, now why did you go on and leave me for? You always wanted me to come and see you in OKC and THIS my friend is no way to get your way! You always did have your way of getting things. I can hear your loud deep laugh right now when we used to cut up at work and everyone would wonder what we were laughing about and you would laugh even louder!! I am glad that I got to talk to you last week when you finally called me so you could tell me what in the world happened to the "STRONG WOMAN" I know. You mentioned that it was the scariest moment you have ever had and i just hope that you weren't scared like that again and you went to "Heaven" peacefully. Guess you will be seeing this white girl that you said doesn't act white again when it's my time. Save me a spot! RIP Mitzi and I will be thinking of you and your family through this sorrowful time.

“ *Shana and Cody,
Your Mother and I go all the way back to high school. We sang together in the high school music group called "The Experiment". I can see her now walking down the halls at high school singing a tune. She was a lot of fun back then and through the years that never changed. I am so glad we had the chance to visit and talk on the phone over the last few years. She was a strong woman in character and had great faith in God. I cannot believe she is gone, but I know she is in heaven with our God and singing a tune! I will always love her and remember her. I wish you both comfort and peace going forward knowing that all is well with her soul.*
